

Neuroscience & Psychotherapy Hub

Participant Agreement

Welcome to the community.

This is a space for learning, reflection and professional development. To help create a safe, respectful and intellectually stimulating environment, all participants agree to the following principles:

Confidentiality

I will respect the confidentiality of other participants.

I understand that personal experiences, professional reflections and case discussions may be shared within the group. I agree not to disclose information shared by other participants outside the community.

I will ensure that any client material I discuss is fully anonymised and does not contain identifying information.

I understand that confidentiality cannot be guaranteed in a group setting, but that all participants are expected to uphold it.

Professional Responsibility

I understand that this programme is educational in nature.

I remain fully responsible for my own professional judgement, clinical decisions and client work.

I will seek appropriate supervision, consultation, medical advice or legal advice where required.

No Therapy or Clinical Services

I understand that participation does not constitute psychotherapy, counselling, supervision, coaching, healthcare or any other professional treatment service.

No therapist-client, supervisor-supervisee or healthcare relationship is created through participation.

Respectful Participation

I will engage respectfully with other participants, even where there are differences of opinion.

I recognise that robust discussion, intellectual disagreement and critical thinking are welcome, but personal attacks, harassment, discrimination or abusive behaviour are not.

Intellectual Property

I understand that course materials, recordings, presentations and written content remain the intellectual property of the facilitator unless otherwise stated.

I will not reproduce, distribute or share materials without permission.

Recordings

I will not make recordings of live sessions without explicit permission.

Community Ethos

I understand that the purpose of this community is to support learning, curiosity, critical thinking and professional growth.

I agree to contribute in a way that supports these aims.

By participating in this programme, I confirm that I have read and agree to these principles.

Special Disclaimer

Ideas discussed within the community are offered for educational exploration and critical examination. Participation does not imply endorsement of any particular theoretical orientation, clinical model or intervention. While there are many knowledge systems, in this setting it is assumed that you accept the relevance and significance of scientific method and logical deduction.
